the Committee that he was being shadowed by three men.
When Mr. McClave made his promise last evening to use all the machinery of the police force to produce Granger this morning. Senator Daniel Bradley remarked that if he would fulfil his word Granger could be brought before the Committee within twenty-four hours.
The Commissioner went into the courtroom with a smiling face shortly after 10 colock this morning. He, was alone, and carried in his hand a bundle of bank books and papers. He said he had beard nothing of the result of the efforts made by the police to find Granger. the Committee that he was being shad-Police Looking for Him.

Police Looking for Him.

"I' was at Police Headquarters late last hight," he said, "and we were then making every effort to locate him. A large number of men had been sent out to look for him, but when I left there no news had been received," It is said that private detectives have also been put on the track of the missing witness. When, Mr. Nicoll arrived at 10,30 he looked anxious and worried as he sat at the table and held a whispered conversation with Mr. McClave. He had heard nothing from Granger, he said, and it began to look as though his prediction that the young man would never again spear before the Committee as a witness would be verified.

At 11 o'clock, when Chairman Lexow called the Committee to order, all the mambers were present with the exception of Sensior Saxton. Nothing had yet them seen of Granger in the court-room, which was crowded with spectators, just ras it had been yesterday.

what crime Granger was charged with?"
"I don't remember that he did."
"Was anything said about forgery?"
"Perhap there was."
"And if there was, you said it?"
"I probably did. A reporter of 'The World' was present."
"Did the Superintendent ask you whether any information was laid or complaint made against Granger?"
"I don't think so."
"Will you swear that you did not say that warrants were out night before last for Granger?"
"After some further questioning, the winess with great deliberation, and with much feeling, said:
"I want to state right here. Mr. Gon, and in, the most solemn manner that any human being can state it, that I am not in any way a party to keeping Granger away from here, and I will say now that nothing would give me greater satisfaction than to be able to put him right here in this witness chair again."
This brought the questioning by Mr.

John H. Bird, the counsel of Bradstreet's, was called as a witness at this point, Mr. McClave yielding the stand.

Mr. Bird produced a copy of a statement made by Mr. McClave to Bradstreet's in 1883, in his own handwriting, in which Mr. McClave claimed that he was worth $146,225.50.

For 1884 the record showed that Mr. McClave estimated his wealth at "close to $150,200;" but the Company rated him at only $100,000. There was no detailed statement.

Another Indignant Protest.

Mr. McClave broke out into an indignant protest as Mr. Goff continued to probe into his private account.

"It is unfair and unjust," he said, "that I am compelled to submit to this sort of examination. You have gone into my family affairs, my grocer's bills, my butcher's bills. It is a shame. The people of New York are not in favor of any such thing."

The witness could only be restrained with difficulty by Chairman Lexow, and continued to mutter to himself for some time afterwards.

GOSSIP OF THE TURF.

The delays at the post have been so tedious of late that yesterday the stewards thought it high time to take a hand in the game and try to remedy matters. So after the fifth race they pounced on Taral, who had been breaking out with Hoey, and warned him that a repetition of the offense would result in suspension. Starter Rowe and Col. Hall, the starting judge, were also informed that Taral, Sims and other high-class jockeys were just as amenable to discipline as the green stable boys. Said Philip Dwyer after this little breeze was over:

"The delay in the fifth race was entireother persons who advised the Gravesagainst the persons who tried to bribe the jurors on the McKane and Sutherland trials. But it is apparent that the proseterday afternoon, and met again at 8 this little breeze was over:

"The delay in the fifth race was entirely due to Taral. He broke frequently and the field broke with him. Every one knows Taral's a good jockey and is going to get away well. The result is that when inexperienced boys are sent to the post their masters instruct them to "watch Taral," or "watch Sims," or some other good jockey in the race. No attention is paid to the starter, and every time Taral's horse moves the field breaks out. Tara, of course, reins up his horse quickly, but the other boys are scattered all over the track. Thus the real offender escapes notice."

There is a good deal of hard common until nearly midnight. It was learned by

There is a good deal of hard common sense in Mr. Dwyer's words. If, the high-class boys would try to help the starter, much better starts would be made and the tedious delays spared. Taral, Sims, Lamiy and one or two others could work wonders in this respect if they tried.

spect if they tried.

It is said that after the Brooklyn meeting ends the mutuel machines will be abolished. The reason for this is that the mutuel scheme is more of a lottery than the simple making of a book bet. A man bets in the mutuels on knowledge and information, just as he does in the books, and it is difficult to see where the lottery element figures any more strongly than in the books, if you except the uncertainty as to the amount to be won. It would be far better for racing if mutuel machines were used exclusively. The 1-2-3 branch of the machines should, however, be discontinued. There is nothing in the rules which compels riding out for third money, though the Associations offer a prize to the third horse. Either the rules should be amended or the 1-2-3 betting entirely eliminated.

The indictments will probably be drawn up to-day, signed to-morrow and handed up in the Court of Sessions Friday morning.

This, it is said, will practically end the prosecutions of the Gravesend cases unless Sutherland is captured.

District-Attorney Ridgway, who has had nothing to do with prosecuting the McKane gang, gave out an interview this morning, in which he denied that more indictments had been found against Sutherland or his pals. Mr. Ridgway made the extraordinary declaration that the appointment of Mr. Shepard as an Assistant District-Attorne was made to enable the latter to "close up the records of the convictions," According to Mr. Ridgway, Mr. Shepard concluded his work before 5 o'clock last night, and he then handed in his resignation, which was accepted.
